

《泰国小象卖萌 见人就给“爱的抱抱”》

A baby elephant has become a star attraction at a farm in Thailand where he falls into the arms of tourists and demands to be cuddled.

??

The endearingly playful infant named Nampuu - which means 'fountain' in Thai - lives at the Patara Elephant Farm in the northern city of Chiang Mai.

Images of the encounters between Nampuu and unwitting tourists show visitors screaming in delight as the cheeky calf climbs on top of them, falls between their arms and wraps his trunk around their heads.

??

During the visit to the farm, tourists can take part in an 'Elephant Owner for the Day' package tour. The tour allows them to learn all about what is involved in rearing and caring for elephants.

During the tour, the trainers explain to visitors the communication and the temperament of the elephants.

According to the farm's Facebook page, baby Nampuu is always supervised by his mother Ploy, just in case he becomes too unruly during playtime with tourists.

She also calls her baby boy to her with a rumbling sound when it is time for him to breastfeed.

????????????????????

The farm had noted he was born a lot smaller than normal newborns and were worried for his survival.

????????????????????????????????????

The farm even designed a little step so little Nampuu could reach his tall mother for a feed.
