Studio interview: Supply-side reform highlighted at China Development Forum

Studio interview: ??????????????2016??

For more on China's development, we are joined by professor Huo Deming from the National School of Development at Peking University.

Q1: This year marks the first year of China's 13th-Five-Year-Plan, and is also a crucial stage for the country to promote structural reforms, especially reforms on the supply side. Experts also suggest demand side reform is also needed for the economic growth pattern, what's your take on it?

Q2: One of the big discussion points is how to use the Internet to generate growth. Is that what China's economy needs?
