The young abductor, Xiao Xin, told police she had been left unsupervised at home for months and simply wanted friends to play with.

The two missing boys, aged 7 and 8, were reported missing from their family's fruit stand in Xinchang county, Zhejiang Province. A six-hour search for the missing children led police to the home of Xiao.

According to the boys' father, Xiao had visited his fruit stand on Sunday morning and chatted with his two sons before they disappeared.

Surveillance videos and witnesses placed Xiao and the boys together during the day. They were seen buying a turtle at a pet shop before boarding a bus.

"It was all very suspicious and all the evidence pointed to a kidnapping case," Chen Tianbin, a police officer, said.

Xiao told authorities she had been living alone for months. Her father was in the hospital and her older brother was taking care of him. Her mother passed away earlier this year.

"I was so lonely. I just wanted someone to play with me," Xiao said. Authorities have arranged for Xiao to receive counseling after school.
