The administration bureau of Sanjiangyuan National Park started trial operations of the park, a vast wetland and grassland area on the Qinghai-Tibet Plateau, two years ago.

The bureau plans to increase the park's green coverage and wildlife species in the next two years, said Li Xiaonan, director of the administration bureau.

Sanjiangyuan literally means "the source of three rivers." The environment has degraded due to human activity such as overgrazing.

The park is rich in wildlife, including endangered species such as the Tibetan antelope and the snow leopard.
