

《Premier Li: Financial sector should support economy》

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang has visited the China Construction Bank and People's Bank of China to get a better picture of how the nation's finance sector benefits the people of China.

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang has visited the China Construction Bank and People's Bank of China to get a better picture of how the nation's finance sector benefits the people of China.

During his inspections, Chinese Premier Li presided over a symposium for the finance sector at the People's Bank of China. Li highlighted the government's view that the finance industry should support the Chinese economy.

He added that more financial support should be given to agricultural developments in rural areas to help farmers. And that small and medium-sized financial institution should gradually increase the proportion of direct financing in these areas.