

You would think a trip away from his young family would give the Duke of Cambridge some time to relax. But when his long weekend away was to France to watch England in action at Euro 2016, it was never going to be an opportunity for the father-of-two to unwind.

A group of men in suits reacting with surprise and shock. The man in the center has his hands on his face and a wide-eyed expression. The background features a large blue and yellow logo, possibly a stylized 'S' or 'B'.
