

《Japan launches train with wall-sized windows》

Japan has plenty of stunning landscape and scenery. But riding the famous bullet trains across the country, passengers are often left with a blurred image. Now however, they will be able to enjoy the beauty in all of its glory, thanks to a train that has huge windows instead of walls.

Passengers in Japan will be able to enjoy the beauty in all of its glory thanks to a train that has huge windows instead of walls.

Futuristic design: Carriages are akin to glass tubes, offering panoramic views. The driver's room is also glass, and passengers can enjoy a drink while watching the driver at work.

The tourist train traverses a magnificent landscape in the western part of the Niigata Prefecture. The two carriages contain 45 seats, with the first carriage offering viewpoints and the second housing a French restaurant.

Designed by Ichibansen, the Echigo Tokimeki Resort Setsugekka charges about U.S.$145 for the full package.

Passengers in Japan will be able to enjoy the beauty in all of its glory thanks to a train that has huge windows instead of walls.

Passengers in Japan will be able to enjoy the beauty in all of its glory thanks to a train that has huge windows instead of walls.

