Prince George stole the show today as he joined his parents for a fun day out at a military air show - but the normally impeccably-behaved youngster could be seen throwing something of a tantrum shortly after his arrival.

The young Prince looked adorable in navy shorts and a white T-shirt with his customary Start Rite shoes as he arrived at the Royal International Air Tattoo in Gloucestershire with his parents, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge.

The trip was the first time George, who turns three in two weeks, has joined his parents on an official engagement in the UK.

However, not long after the family made their way to the show the two-year-old was swept up into his mother's arms after he began crying.

The little Prince was lifted into one of the Red Arrows as his father and a member of the aerobatic team helped him inside.

But after a teary arrival, Prince George was soon back to his well-behaved self, as his father showed him around the helicopters and aircraft on display.
