

Media helicopters were grounded during the women's cycling competition. Rowers were ordered to stay off the water, after competitors complained that high winds that capsized one boat on Saturday should have forced postponement Sunday, as well.

??

In other action, reigning world champion swimmer Yulia Efimova of Russia was booed after winning her heat in the 100-meter breaststroke preliminaries, after serving a 16-month suspension for doping and then testing positive this year for the now-banned pharmaceutical meldonium.

??100????????????????????????????????????16????????????????????????????????

She and six other Russian swimmers were initially banned from the Rio games following reports from the World Anti-Doping Agency identifying a state-sanctioned doping scheme for Russian athletes. The Olympic International Committee reinstated her and several other high-profile Russian swimmers in the past week.

??
??

The most decorated athlete in Olympic history, American Michael Phelps, competes Sunday in the 4x100-meter freestyle relay. Americans are hoping for first place this time after the French took the gold in 2012.

?????????????——????????·????????4x100????????????????????2012????????????????????????????????

Phelps hits the water in the 200 meter butterfly and is expected to swim the 100 meter fly, 200 meter individual medley, and as many as three relays.

????????200????????????????100????200????????????????

Women's U.S. swimming has picked up its first medal in the 4x100-meter freestyle. The team included 19-year-old Katie Ledecky who is competing for three individual medals, and is a favorite in the 400 freestyle, in which she holds the world record.

????????4x100????????????????????19????·????????????????????????????400????????????????

Day two of the Rio Games is also a day for men's fencing, judo, women's road cycling and the U.S. gymnastics women's national team to make their debut.

??

Olympic gymnastics champion Gabby Douglas is facing heavy competition from other countries and her teammate

Simone Biles. Douglas's became the first African-American to win all-around gold during the London Olympics to lead the United States to the women's team title.

????????-??

Meanwhile, Kosovo judo fighter Majlinda Kelmendi won the gold medal for the women's 52-kilogram division Sunday, giving her Balkan nation its first-ever Olympic medal.

????????????????-????????????52????????????????????????????????????

And Spanish cyclist Joaquim Rodriguez, who finished fifth in Saturday's competition, has announced his retirement, saying he has fulfilled a lifelong ambition to compete in the Rio games. The 37-year-old won three stages of the Tour de France in July, confirmed on Twitter that Saturday's race would be his last.

????????????-??37??
????????????

