

On Horton's Instagram account, Chinese netizens demanded an apology for his "arrogance and unfounded slander." Some called him a racist.

????Instagram??

After winning the gold, Horton said Sunday that he would not withdraw his comments. Horton said "I used the word 'drug cheat' because he tested positive," Horton told reporters. "I just have a problem with him testing positive and still competing," the Sydney Morning Herald reported.

??
??

In 2014, Sun was suspended from competition for three months by the China Anti-Doping Agency (CHINADA) for testing positive for the banned substance trimetazidine, used to treat angina. His suspension ended before he competed in that year's Asian Games in Incheon, South Korea, where he won three golds.

2014????????????????????CHINADA??
????????????????????

Sun responded to Horton that "on the Olympics' competition stage, every athlete deserves to be respected and there's no need to use these cheap tricks to affect each other."

??

In 2013, six swimmers on the Australian team were sanctioned for use of a sedative, Stilnox, ahead of the London 2012 Olympics. The drug had been banned by the Australian Olympic Committee some months before, and the six were warned that further breaches would see them ruled ineligible for selection for Rio, ABC news reported.

2013????????6????????????2012??ABC????????????????????
????????????2016?????????