

《Saving traditional Miao embroidery art》

Kaili city in southwest China's Guizhou province provides Miao embroidery training courses for local village women to give them a route out of poverty. The training courses are also to promote traditional Miao culture. Miao embroidery is a unique artistic culture with a long history, and it was among the first group of items that were included on the national cultural heritage list.

Kaili city in southwest China's Guizhou province provides Miao embroidery training courses for local village women to give them a route out of poverty. The training courses are also to promote traditional Miao culture. Miao embroidery is a unique artistic culture with a long history, and it was among the first group of items that were included on the national cultural heritage list.