Dawn quoted her brother as saying: "She wasn't aware I was killing her. I gave her a tablet and then strangled her."

??

Speaking after his arrest, he said: "I am not ashamed. We are Baloch and as Baloch we cannot tolerate [this]".

??

He pointed to videos his sister had made, and specifically the images taken with the cleric, Mufti Abdul Qavi.

??

Police said the brother had escaped to Dera Ghazi Khan after the killing in the Karimabad area of Multan early on Saturday morning.

??

They said he fled with two friends who were still being sought.

In a recent interview she was bitterly critical of Pakistan's patriarchal society and described herself as a leading exponent of girl power.

??

While many younger people saw her as a cultural icon and hailed her liberal views, she was also subjected to frequent misogynist abuse online.

??

Ms Baloch had gone to Punjab from Karachi because of the threat to her security, police say.
