

导读:中国葡萄酒品酒大师在法国举办的世界葡萄酒盲饮测试锦标赛中，击败多个国家的品酒专家，赢得冠军。

????????????????????????????????????????“?????????????”

??????6?????6????????????21???????????

????????????????????????????????????????11??

The Chinese competitors put their success down to knowledge and luck.

????????????????????

But they did say competition was fierce to get on the team.

????????????????

China's wine industry has grown in recent years as the country has begun to devote an increasing amount of its land to vineyards. Last year it had 799,000 hectares (1.97 million acres) of land dedicated to growing grapes, second only to Spain worldwide.

????????????????????????????????????????79.9????????197????????????????????????????

In 2011, a Chinese winery beat a host of French rivals to collect an international gold medal for one of its wines.

2011????????????????????????????????????

The Chinese team that competed on Saturday at the Chateau du Galoupet, one of France's biggest wine estates, included Liu Chunxia, Tze Chien Chen, Xi Chen, Xianchen Ma and coach Alexander Brice Leboucq.

???10?8????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

Their surprise win saw them perform best at identifying the 12 wines' countries of origin, grape varieties, vintages, producers and appellation (geographical areas).

??????12????????????????????????????????????????????????????

Organisers from the French specialist magazine La Revue du vin de France wrote that the "astounding Chinese team" were "humble even in victory".

??????????? La Revue du vin de France?????"????"?????"????????"?

They "conceded that in blind tasting, 50% is knowledge and 50% is luck," the magazine continued.

?????????"????????50%????????50%????"?