

《Heartwarming! Customer puts insoles back after buying from 1》

A 107-year-old man, Wang Zhengrong, who has been selling insoles for years at the west gate of Communication University of China, has often received plenty of attention on social media, attracting many people to come. The centenarian says he has one son and two daughters but is living alone. He began to sell insoles more than 10 years ago. Wang had to walk about an hour to the workplace and worked five-and-a-half hours, until the insoles sold out. The old man is hard of hearing, but his eyesight is still good. He communicates with the customers by writing down the numbers for the deals. Wang's story went viral, attracting many people to come. One customer bought a pile of insoles and put them back minutes later without notice. (Photo: Youth.cn)

© 视觉中国

A 107-year-old man, Wang Zhengrong, who has been selling insoles for years at the west gate of Communication University of China, has often received plenty of attention on social media, attracting many people to come. The centenarian says he has one son and two daughters but is living alone. He began to sell insoles more than 10 years ago. Wang had to walk about an hour to the workplace and worked five-and-a-half hours, until the insoles sold out. The old man is hard of hearing, but his eyesight is still good. He communicates with the customers by writing down the numbers for the deals. Wang's story went viral, attracting many people to come. One customer bought a pile of insoles and put them back minutes later without notice. (Photo: Youth.cn)