

?????Instagram????? ?????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

????????????????

A photograph of Barack Obama, dressed in a dark suit and blue tie, standing indoors and looking out a window. He has his hands raised in a gesture of surprise or delight. Outside the window, a snowman wearing a blue top hat and a blue scarf is visible. The window is decorated with a green garland and a red ribbon. The scene is set in a room with light-colored walls and a white door frame.

But finally this morning before the President came to the office, some helpful staff — I won't say who — moved all the snowmen so each one was peeking through a different window into the Oval,

????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

First lady Michelle Obama then joked about putting one of the snowmen in their bedroom, to which the president replied, "I would move. If I see one of those snowmen in my bedroom, I'm moving."

????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

