Her obstetrician, Chen Aihua, decided to postpone the delivery of the twin girls to provide them more time in their mother's womb.

??

All three babies are in neonatal intensive care units due to premature and low birth weight.

The obstetrician Chen said she had never performed such a delivery in her 20 years of practice.

She also explained the delivery was made possible in part because the twin girls and the boy had separate placentas.

The mother, whose age was not reported, became pregnant with the triplets after undergoing a fertility treatment.
