

《为纪念去世的女儿，她拍下了这样一张令人心酸的照片》

导读:女儿4岁时，因罕见疾病不幸去世，她将女儿的骨灰盒放在女孩常坐的汽车座椅上，并拍下了照片，感动了无数人。

When Sarah Walton needed to transport her deceased 4-year-old daughter's ashes from the funeral home, she put them in the only logical place she could think of: the little girl's car seat.

???·????4??—????????????????

Ellie Walton died in January from a rare brain tumor. She endured 17 surgeries, 14 of them brain surgeries, in her short life.

??·??17????????14????????

Sarah Walton "wasn't sure" why she photographed the temporary urn in the car seat, but she's received such an outpouring of support since she posted it on the Facebook page Prayers for Ellie Walton that she hopes it's raising awareness about pediatric cancer.

??·??"??·?????"??
???

Currently, 4 percent of cancer research funding goes to pediatric cancer.

????4%????????????????????

"It's been two months of pure torture, agony, and despair," Walton wrote. "All I want back is our daily life, whatever

"?????????????"????"??
??"

Walton told ABC News that she never wants another mother to go through this.

?????ABC News, ?????????????????????

But posting about Ellie, Walton told ABC News, also helps her cope with her daughter's loss. "I love to talk about her and have people remember her. I love to hear about her and I love to talk about her."

????????????????????ABC News,????????????????????“??”

Ellie wore sunglasses everywhere she went, her mother said. "But she always wore them upside down. Even when I put them on her the right way she turned them around." She also loved animals, especially dinosaurs, and pickles.

????????????????????“????????????????????”????????????????????

