

《比尔·盖茨接受《人民日报》专访盛赞中国发展，看看他都说了啥！》

导读:著名实业家、慈善家比尔·盖茨即将访华，在接受《人民日报》专访时，盖茨盛赞了中国的发展。

Bill Gates, American business magnate, philanthropist and co-chair of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation recently gave an exclusive interview to the People's Daily out of his busy schedule before he licks off a Chinese visit.

Q:Thank you very much for your time. I hear that you will visit China soon. The first time you visited China was in 1994, still remember your first impression of China?

??1994????????????????

A: Every time I go, you know China's advancing, whether it's the buildings, or the people we are meeting with, or the technology. So it's been exciting to keep going back and see how quickly it's improving.

??

Q: You've made so many trips to China over the years. What do you think is the most significant change that has taken place in China?

????????????????????????????????

A: I'd say two things. One is the miracle of Chinese economic development, lifting people out of poverty, building up the infrastructure, and developing world-class universities.

??

I remember almost every year somebody says, well now the China boom will reach its limits. And then 3 years later, they'll say it's reached its limits...Of course, even today there's some strains and challenges, but still the growth is lifting people up. And it's quite impressive.

The second thing I'd say is that China is embracing its role in the world more. Of course its first priority was the poverty in the country, but in parallel to that now China has joined the World Trade Organization, and China's made really big commitments to Africa, both financially and about partnership. And in the region, the Belt & Road project is about tying together the economies for mutual benefit. So all of that has been exciting to see.

Q: What's the strategic focus of the Gates Foundation in China? How do you see China's role in global development and governance?

A: The work of the Gates Foundation in China has two phases. One is the work in China itself, helping people with HIV, helping avoid people getting infected, working on tuberculosis and smoking (control).

??

Our second phase is a three-way partnership, where developing countries, China and the foundation find ways to work together. And taking some (of China's) strengths like livestock vaccines; rice, including super green rice, where China's very strong. So, (there're) many examples. Ethiopia is a good example, where funding animal vaccine projects are what we are working on together.

So the commitment to help other parts of the world is very important. That's something that historically the U.S. has been very good at, but I'd be disappointed if the US cuts back. But it's fantastic that China, because of its
