Social media in China has been buzzing following the release of a video this week showing passengers coming together, along with staff, to help leverage a subway car off a woman's leg in Guangzhou.

The 72-year-old woman's leg became wedged in the gap between the carriage and the platform on subway line-6 in Guangzhou on Saturday afternoon, May 6, 2017.

Recognizing the problem, fellow passengers alerted subway staff, then banded together to push the subway car away from the platform to help free the woman's leg.

Even those not exiting the train at the time pitched in to help, reports the Beijing Youth Daily.
