

《Millions of animals make the annual journey in Kenya》

More than two million animals are making the annual journey from the Serengeti to Maasai Mara in Kenya. They include zebras, wildebeests, and gazelles. The dramatic journey provides opportunities for animals to get better living habitation.

The animals have been moving up from the Serengeti since around April time, forming columns up to 40 kilometers long.

By late July they've reached the borders of the Maasai Mara, and begin to gather on the banks of the Mara River preparing to cross.

The wonder scene draws thousands from around the world. It is not a cheap getaway, a luxury tent here can easily cost 1,000 US dollars a night.
