

《特朗普访欧结束 美国内通俄门愈演愈烈》

By CGTN's Jessica Stone

US President Donald Trump lashed out against the media over coverage of the probe into possible links between his campaign team and Russia, and questions about his son-in-law and White House senior adviser Jared Kushner.

With his first foreign trip now behind his back, Trump returned to the White House to face more challenges.

According to media reports, Kushner is under FBI scrutiny for his relationship with Russian officials during the transitional period before Trump took office.

Last December, at a meeting with Russian Ambassador to the US Sergey Kislyak, Kushner reportedly discussed creating secret back channel communications between the Trump transition team and the Kremlin through a Russian diplomatic facility.

To discuss the latest troubles in the Trump administration, "The Heat" on CGTN has invited the following panelists:

- Afshin Molavi, senior fellow of Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies
- Ray McGovern, analyst of the CIA
- Simon Marks, president and chief correspondent of Feature Story News
- Lester Munson, vice president of BGR Group, a strategic consulting firm
