The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and their son Prince George have arrived in New Zealand for the start of their three-week trip.

New Zealanders are excited for the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, along with their son Prince George. Prince William has visited New Zealand several times in the past, including shortly after a catastrophic earthquake struck the city of Christchurch in 2011.

However, it is Kate and George's first trip to the island nation. The foreign tour, which includes Australia, is the family's first trip together and comes 31 years since William made the same trip as a baby.
