

《长大不得了 4岁女童设计师参展纽约时装周》

Like many designers at New York Fashion Week, Mayhem expertly posed for photos, showed off her creations and took interviews. Unlike most designers, however, she is only four years old.

??

Known on Instagram as 2sisters_angie to her 400,000-plus followers, this adorable pre-schooler and her mother Angie Keiser, who calls her 'Mayhem' on social media instead of using her real name, have designed dozens of dresses with the clever and creative use of paper.

???????????2sisters_angie????40????????????????????-????????????????????????????????????
 ?????????

She wore one of her own designs to the event - a black and white peplum top with a floral design and a black skirt, all made from paper, of course.

????????????????——????????????????????????????????

Mayhem's interest in fashion was sparked last year, when she began wrapping herself in scarves and random pieces of fabric to create brand new outfits.

??

When her mother suggested she start making her own clothes from construction paper, the idea took hold - and they haven't turned back since.

??

Now she has a huge following on Instagram, where she shares pictures of the recreations she has made of some of her favorite red carpet looks and high-fashion designs.

??

Ever the professional, Mayhem sketches her dresses before bringing them to life - although recently she's been going more high-tech with her visions.

????????????????????????????——????????????????????????

Considering she was invited to her first Fashion Week before kindergarten, it's safe to say Mayhem has got the fashion bug - and it's not going away any time soon.

??

'There is no shortage of inspiration at this point,' Angie says proudly.

????????????“????????????????”