Two senior students who missed their gaokao due to injuries suffered when they heroically stopped a bus attack were offered admission to some universities, said The Beijing News on Sunday.

Nanchang University and Yichun University have offered both students places.

The public praised the two senior students who were about to attend the college entrance examination but fought against an attacker with a knife on a bus. The attacker was hurting passengers and the two stopped the violence on May 31 in Yichun city, Jiangxi province.
