A man named Xia Wenjin was found dead in a fishing pond after being released from detention in a local police station in Pu'er city, Yunan province, on June 14, Beijing Times reported.

Xia was detained on May 5 for theft. After eight days of detention, his body was recovered in a fishing pond. The police said Xia drowned, but Xia's family doubted that, saying they think he was actually tortured to death because there were several bruises in his body. The case is now under investigation.
