Donors raise 5 million yuan for deserted boy

The cousin and current guardian of a 14-year-old boy who had lived alone for six years in a remote mountainous area, said he will not misuse the five million yuan ($ 800,500) donated to the boy and has invited the public to oversee expenditure, CCTV reported.

Yang Liujin, from a small town in Baise city, South China's Guangxi province, has lived alone since the age of eight after his father died, his mother remarried and left him and his grandparents died. He dug wild vegetables and caught fish to feed himself.
