

《伦敦大火 英国保守党和民主共和党协议推迟》

A deal between Northern Ireland's Democratic Unionist Party and British Prime Minister Theresa May's Conservatives could be delayed until next week after a fire in an apartment block in central London killed several people on Wednesday, the BBC reported.

Media had reported a deal, which would see the DUP support May's minority government, was on course to be announced on Wednesday.

The BBC said that would now not happen, a delay which could possibly postpone Brexit talks due to begin next week.

"Deal between DUP and government could be delayed until next week because of aftermath of #grenfelltower and diary commitments of both leaders," BBC political reporter Norman Smith said on Twitter.

norman smith
@BBCNormanS

Follow

Deal between DUP and Govt cd be delayed until next week cos of aftermath of #grenfelltower and diary commitments of both leaders

RETWEETS
65

LIKES
20

5:09 PM - 14 Jun 2017

23

65

20

Screenshot from Twitter

Smith also tweeted that "Delay to deal with DUP means likely postponement of Queens speech; and possibly Brexit talks."

(Source: Reuters)

