

《双语：高空的浪漫 美国夫妇的热气球婚礼》

Suspended 2000ft above the ground, a Georgia bride and groom were literally floating on air on their big day as they tied the knot on a hot air balloon.

????2000??(2609?)????????????????????????????????

Sara and Joseph Stewart, from Canton, exchanged their vows during the unusual ceremony, watched by a single friend.

????????????????????--??-????????-????????????????????

But it wasn't all plain sailing, as the loved-up pair had had to keep their unique choice of venue a secret until the last moment in case the flight was cancelled due to bad weather.

????????????????????????????????????????????????

The unusual choice of venue also meant that Mrs Stewart's father was unable to be with them as they exchanged vows, although he did give his daughter away beforehand.

????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

In the event, the only close friend to share the couple's magical moment was Leslie, a military chaplain who performed the ceremony.

????????????????????????????????????????????

Rather than sending their friends invitations to a wedding, the couple invited them to their house the following day to watch the footage of the quirky ceremony and celebrate their marriage.

????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

Mrs Stewart, a wedding photographer, came up with the idea after her new husband revealed he had planned to pop the question on a hot air balloon, but decided it was too expensive.

????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????

'In my line of work I had seen so many different weddings and I didn't want to copy anyone else's,' she says. 'I wanted to do something different.'

“????????????????????????????????”????“????????????”

[illegible]

????????2012????????2007????????????????

"????????????????"???? "????????????????????????????????????????????????????????????"

[illegible][illegible][illegible]