Republicans will finalise their nomination at a convention in July.

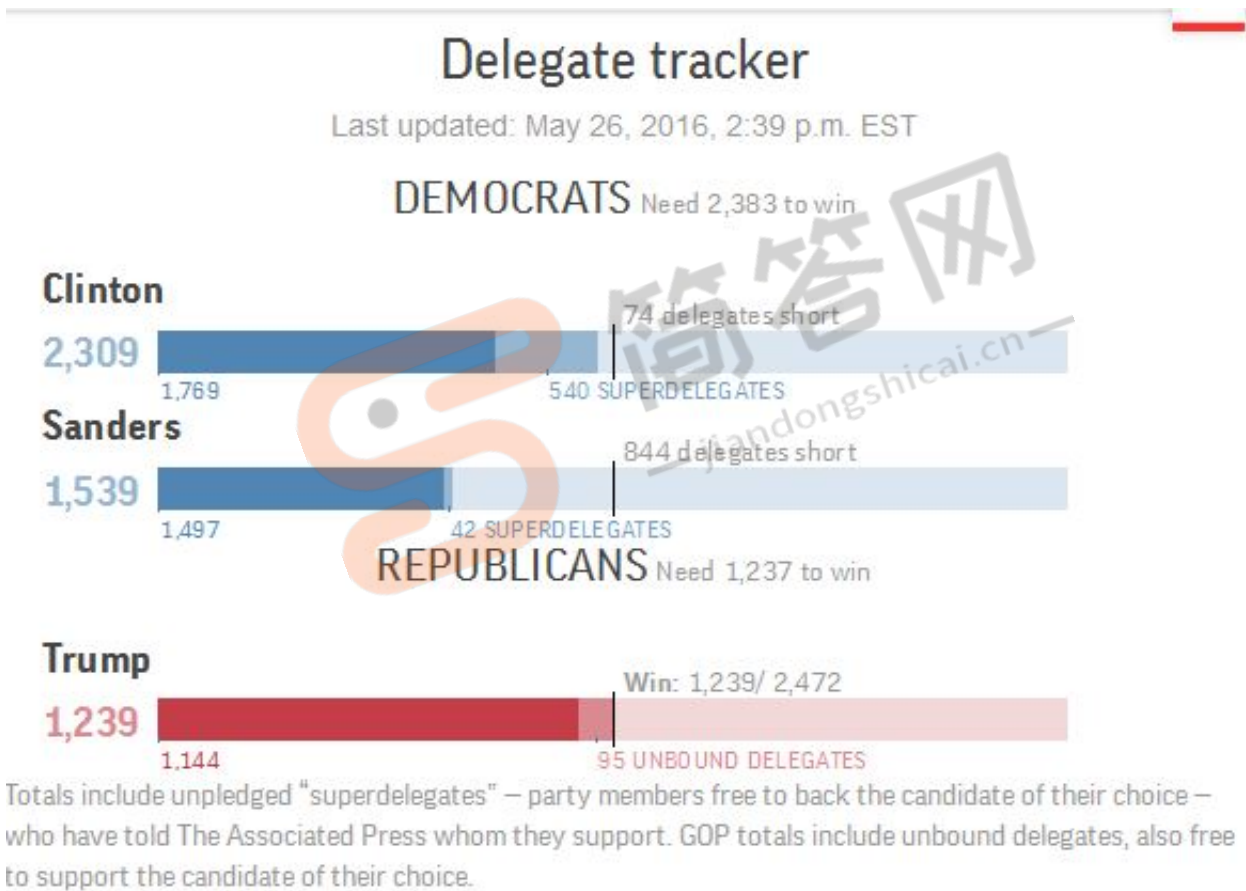

????????????????????????????????

While Mr Trump has the required amount of delegates, his nomination by a divided Republican Party is not yet secured.

??

Unbound delegates in the party are free to support the candidate of their choice.

If his nomination is //confirm/i/ied, Mr Trump will face former US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton or Vermont Senator Bernie Sanders, who are vying for the Democrat nomination.

??

On Wednesday, the New York billionaire suggested going against Mr Sanders in a TV debate in California before the state's primary on 7 June.

Earlier, the current US president Barack Obama said that world leaders "had good reason to be rattled" by Mr Trump, whose proposals he said were "either ignorance of world affairs or a cavalier attitude".

????????????????????"?????"????????????"????????????????????"

In response to that, Mr Trump told reporters in North Dakota that rattling leaders of other countries was a "good thing".

????????????????????"???"

"[President Obama] knows nothing about business," he said.
