

《深圳山体滑坡七人获救》

Landslide hits industrial park in Shenzhen, rescue work on

A landslide hit an industrial park in Shenzhen city in South China's Guangdong province Sunday morning, crushing several buildings. Photo by the Weibo account of CCTV.

A landslide hit an industrial park in Shenzhen city, South China's Guangdong province, on Sunday morning crushing several buildings.

Police received a report at 11:40 am of the landslide, which took place in the Liuxi Industrial Park in Guangming New District in northwest part of the city.

As of 1pm, seven people were rescued; one was slightly injured while the other six were uninjured, said sina.com.cn.

A total of 185 firefighters, 37 fire trucks and rescue dogs have been rushed to the scene., according to the Weibo account of People's Daily.

The landslide happened near a gas station, which shut off its pipelines soon after the accident. No gas leak was found.