

?????????????????????????????"??"? ???Topshop????????Th e Sunglass Hut(????????Pret-A-Manger????????????????????????????????Krispy Kreme????????

Tarcan Yakan @TarcanSays · 3h
 Thanks to @DirectLine_UK for bringing me lunch as I forgot mine! #EveryDayFix pic.twitter.com/imch8pgtKB

 3
  1

View photo

The gesture soon caught the attention of Twitter users with the hashtag #everydayfix gaining momentum. None of the gifts bore charges, to the delight of their many recipients.

#####everydayfix#####

Launched a month ago, the programme will seek out those they believe are in need of a fix online for a few days yet. While it is paying for each of the products a spokesman refused to reveal how much had been spent answering people's woes. 'We know how stressful everyday emergencies can be - those little things you don't plan. So we're extending our role as fixers to take care of the little things which can sometimes tip you over the edge.'

#####"#####"

Other companies to have offered commuters special offers include breakfast company Belvita which offered workers free rides in Tuk Tuks with complimentary snacks.

#####Belvita#####

Fitness First invited anyone who had run, cycled or walked to work to use their gym showers to freshen up before heading into the office and encouraged others to become fit with free training sessions.

#####Fitness First#####

Vocabulary

drudgery: ???

deodorant: ???

dish out:??

aftersun: ????

tip over the edge: ???????????????

Tuk Tuk: ???

?????????

???hanlututu

?? & ???bruce

