

《9月9日苹果发布会标语：嘿Siri 给我们点提示吧》

Apple sent out press invites for its fall iPhone event on Thursday. The event will take place on Sept. 9, 2015 at the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium in San Francisco.

????????????iPhone????????????2015?9?9?????????·???????????

At the event, Apple is expected to show off new iPhone models as well as a new Apple TV.

????????????iPhone???Apple TV?

"Hey Siri, give us a hint."

Please join us for an invitation-only event at the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium in San Francisco on Wednesday, September 9, at 10:00 a.m.

The Bill Graham Civic Auditorium is a new venue for Apple. Historically, the company holds iPhone events at Moscone West or at its campus in Cupertino. The auditorium has a capacity of 7,000 people.

??·??iPhone????????????7000??

Typically, the company launches its products at the Yerba Buena Center in San Francisco, which holds 757 attendees. The Flint Center, where Apple held its 2014 event, holds up to 2,405. Upping the capacity to 7,000 people implies Apple has something extra planned.

????????????????????????????????????757??2014????????????????????????2405????????????7000????????????????

The clue for the event, "Hey Siri, give us a hint" suggests that Siri may be involved. We'd previously heard that HomeKit wouldn't be a big part of the launch, but the location, the Siri tie-in and the capacity of this event imply there has to be something beyond updated iPhone devices, a new Apple TV and the launch of watchOS 2.0.

?????????"Siri????????"????????Siri????????HomeKit????????????Siri????????iPhone??
???Apple TV?Apple Watch 2.0????????????????????