

《读的英语单词》

???????read????read????read????reading?????reads????I read about it in the paper.(????????????????)

How can you read such filth?

??????????????

Will you read me a bedtime story?

??????????????

He'd never learned to read.

??????????????

She read us a story.

??????????????

"Two Sisters" is an absorbing read.

????????????????????

Do you read your stars in the paper?

????????????????

He can't read or write.

????????

The book read like a black comic burlesque.

????????????????

In her spare time she read books on cooking.

????????????????

I can't read this small type.

????????????

He read a passage from Emerson.

????????????

This book is a rattling good read.

????????????

He read the salient facts quickly.

????????????????

I read much less now than I used to.

????????????

The letter was read at a stormy meeting.

????????????????

My computer can't read the disk you sent.

????????????????

Tony Benn's diaries are a rollicking read.

??-????????????

After supper he'd put his feet up and read.

????????????????

The kids kept pestering me to read to them.

????????????????

He read the children a story.

????????????????

I read Lili a story and tucked her in.

????????????????

Don't read too much into what she says.

????????????????

He was there to read the electricity meter.

??????????

Silence must not always be read as consent.

??????????????

I read the letter with a sense of misgiving.

????????????????

I always read her column in the local paper.

????????????????

Always read the instructions before you start.

??????????????

I would be obliged if you could read it to us.

????????????????

She read everything, digesting every fragment of news.

????????????????

Recently, I dug out Barstow's novel and read it again.

????????????????