

The GMA interview was a Trump family affair. Stephanopoulos lobbed some questions in the direction of the three eldest Trump offspring, who answered with incomprehension of reality. Donald Jr. spoke repeatedly about who his father is "touching," which is maybe not the best word choice. Ivanka defended her un-politicized advocacy for women and claimed she's never seen her father fail. Then, when talking about the new Trump Tower in Washington, D.C., the family had a good laugh about their father's whimsical journey from real estate tycoon to hopeful nominee to candidate:

??????

