

《春节临近中央为高官敲响警钟》

With the New Year holiday and Spring Festival fast approaching, China's central government has sounded the alarm for party officials. The message to them is simple, be careful where you eat, how you travel, whom you party with, and what you receive.

No luxury banquets using public money and no luxury trips using public vehicles. And Party officials should not use the occasion of holiday parties to form factions. They should not receive gifts, no matter whether in cash, cards or any other form. The central disciplinary watchdog has opened a column on its website, asking Internet users to report any indiscrepancies they witness.

