

《李克强出访新西兰：中新合作共赢，深化合作》

导读:3月28日,在新西兰进行正式访问的国务院总理李克强与新西兰总理英格利希共同出席新西兰各界欢迎宴会,并发表演讲。

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang and his New Zealand counterpart Bill English on Tuesday vowed to deepen the relations between the two countries for increased mutual benefits.

??

Li made the remarks at a welcoming luncheon organized by the political, business and academic circles of New Zealand.

New Zealand has always been leading among developed countries in developing relations with China, and has created many "firsts," Li said.

To maintain the authority and effectiveness of the multilateral trade system, the premier urged the two countries to jointly promote the setup of open and transparent regional free trade arrangements, which will be conducive to regional and world peace, development and cooperation.

??

Stressing that China would continue to push forward its supply-side structural reform and steadfastly expand its opening-up, Li said China adopts an open attitude toward any free trade arrangement that promotes regional economic integration.

??

The Chinese premier also called on the two countries to deepen political mutual trust, work for synergy between the two countries' economic development strategies, expand and upgrade bilateral trade relations, and deepen people-to-people and cultural exchanges.

??

For his part, English said that Premier Li's visit vigorously advances the development of China-New Zealand relations and pragmatic cooperation in various areas.
